In the meantime the Thetis sounded her whistle, which was heard by Greely in his camp. The unwouted sound awoke the slumbering and fast-sinking explorers. When the launch reached the ice in the vicinity of the camp a solitary man was seen descending to the strand with uncertain steps. He had heard the whistle and saw the approaching boat. The crew of the launch regarded this as an evil omen. As soon as the fee fort was touched I jumped on shore, and accosted the lone stranger: "How are you all?" He answered faint-"There are seven of us left yet." We were all struck with dismay. Gathering up hastily a little food and stimulants, we hastened to the Greely encampment, and there beheld a heart-shattering scene. A gale of wind was blowing. The tent had been shattered and had fallen on the wearied and dying men. We en-tered and saw a scene of unspeakable misery and desolation. Haggard faces, storing eyes the Thetis for assistance. Capt. Emroy and Dr. Ames came on shore, a fire was kindled, hot milk-punch was prepared, restoratives were applied, and in less than an hour the woebegone sufferers were able to stand staggeringly on their feet. Ten bodies were unearthed and two disinterred from the fee fort and brought down to the steam-launch to be transferred to the schips. Two of the living party were strong enough to be led along on their feet. The other five were borne down on stretchers with the greatest care. Greely abandoned Fort Conger Aug. 9, 1883, and reached Baird Inlet Sept. 29 following, with the entire party well. He abandoned all his boats, and was admit thirty days on an ice fice in Smith's Sound. His permanent camp was established Oct. 21, 1884, at the point where he was found. During nine months his party had to live njon a scant all wance of feed brought from tort Cong r; that cached at Payer Harbor and Cape Isabelta by Sir George Nares in 1875 but found much dam get by larse of time; that cached by Beebe at Cape Sabine in 1882; and asmall amount saved from he wreck woman's husband, whose jealousy had already been aroused. Garlington and Colw ill on the beach near where Greely's party was found. When these provisions were consumed the party was forced to live upon bottled seal-skin stripped from the seal-skin clothing, and lichens and sarimps procured in good weather, when they were strong enough to make exertions. As it took 1,300 shrimps to fill a gallon measure, the labor was too exhausting to depend upon them to sustain life entirely. The channel between Cape Sabine and Littleton Island did not be so on account of violent gales all winter, so that 240 rations at the latter point could not be reached. 27, and he was rescued on the morning of June 3, which would make seven days that could not be reached.

From Hare Island to Smith's Sound I had a constant and furious struggle with the ice in impassable floes. Solid berriers were overcome by watchfulness and palence. No opportunity to advance a mile e-caped me, and for several hundred miles the ships were forced to ram tacjr wav from lead to lead through ice varying in thickness from three to six feet, and when rafted much greater. The Thetis and the Bear reached Cape York June 18, after a passage of twenty-one days in Melville Bay, with two advance ships of the Dundoe whaling fleet, and continued on to Cape Sabine. Returning seven days later, we fed in with seven others of this fleet off Wostenbolm Island and announced Gre by's rescue to them that they might not be delayed from their fishing grounds nor be tempted into the dangers of Smith's Sound in view of the reward of $23,000 offered by Congress. Returning across Melville Bay, we fell in with the Alert and Lock Garry off Devil's Thumb, struggling through the heavy ice. Wilson's ranch is about 200 miles from the spot where Burbank was found, but it is hardly probable that the broncho took a direct course, and, therefore, must have covered many more miles in his wild journet. When fully restored to health Bur-Land and Cattle Company, whose range is

The Greely party reached the highest latitude ever attained by polar explorers, name-ly, 83 deg. 25.5 min. The coast of Greenand pieces of the boiler were scattered for land was carried up to 83 deg. 35 min.

Interviews with Lieut, Greely and other spirator had recently been placed on the survivors of the unfortunate arctic colony engine, which would not work, and it exelicited the following facts:

elicited the following facts:

After passing two winters at Fort Conger in scientific research, Lieut Greey, with his whole party intact, broke up the encampment and commenced a southward descent. This was acc mplished amid great perlis from gless of wind, ice-nins, and other casualnes. Cape Sabine having been reached, a temporary home was built or stones and cover-d by the boats saits brought along by the party. On the 27th of September wister quarters were established at Cape Sabine. The commissariat had become very meager, and the cache of provisions left by the Protons last year but no riy supplemented it. The steam launch had become in it in the ice a few weeks precions and had to be abandoned during the whole winter. The first havoe in the ranks was early in January, when one of the men dropped off with scurvy. On the 9th of April Lieut, Lockwood and Mr. Rice, the photographer, succumbed after a heroic attempt had been made to secure about two hundred pounds of meat supposed to be cached at a place named Bad Creek, distantabout fitteen miles from the encamement, Israel, the astronomer, perished May 27. Lieut Kislingbury died June 1, and Dr. Pavy, the naturalist, slep in ceath June 26. Not one of the victims realized that death was near. They all died a transmil, painless death. The two Esquimanx also perished, one of starvation. The other was drow et, his kayak being pierced by some newly formed i.e April 17, thus cutting off all hope o, getting any supply of seal meat for the starving explorers. The Esquimanx were most faithful and devoted followers and helpers of Lieut. Greely.

Ellison was rescued and safely brought on board the stem-hip Bear, where he died a few days subsequently. His is an ex raordinary instance of human endu ance. While away some ten miles from his hot one day last winter the tempera ure suddenly fell to 48 degrees below zero. His hands and feet wire trozen to the very bone, and he was dragg d by his comrades in an almost dying a pulling to his hut. His in an almost dying e ndition to his hut. His feet and hands w re literally amputate i by the incisive frost, and in this terrible state he lived through the dismal months that interven d between that the time and the same that interven in the first and the same that t this writing, is resting easily, but there are tween that time and the rescue.

A workman named Calahan is seriously hurt about the back, though the physicians A Washington dispatch states that President Arthur, in conversation with some friends, said he was very much gratified at near by and a number of physicians lent the the finding of Lieut. Greely and the rembest aid possible. Three only of the men employed were injured, being in the rear of nant of his party. He added: This is the last of arctic exceptions as far as I can prevent hem. None of them has ever paid for the extreme suffering and loss of vanable lives they have occase need, and I t ink' t is about time that some other nation try them for awhile.

President Arthur, in previous conversations, has characterized the whole business as a species of "arctic insanity." There is general recognition of the fact that some one is responsible for the death of the members of the Greety expedition who died from cold and hunger, and a general expectation p evails that a court of inquiry will be ordered when the Secretary of War returns, to place this responsibility where it belongs.
